

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

We are working on the genre of narrative.

We will be exploring Michelle Paver's 'Wolf Brother'.

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

What inferences could we make from this front cover?

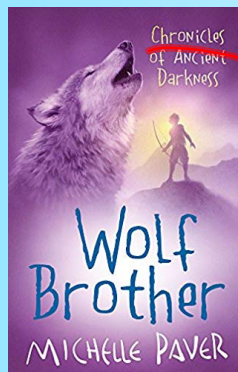

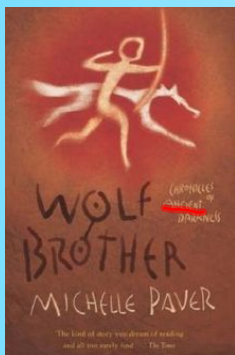

What clues does it give us?

Look at the style and content of the writing.

Look at the picture.

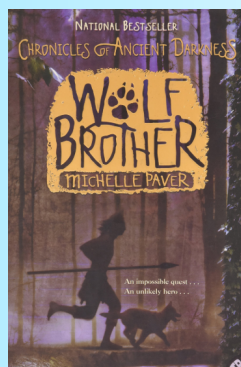

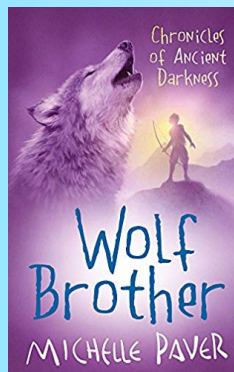

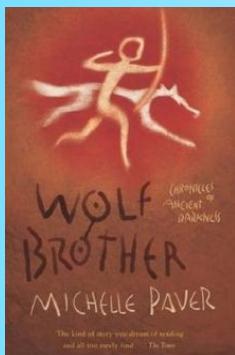

Look at the colours used.

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

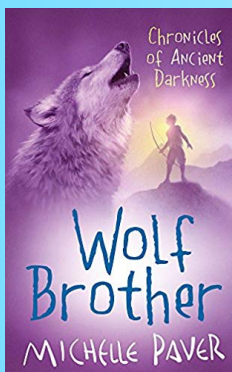

Does this change our ideas of the book?

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

How does this alter/
add to your perception of the book?

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

What genre would this be?

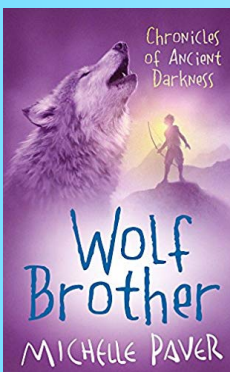

Main characters?

What does the choice of colours in the illustration tell us?

What could the key events be?

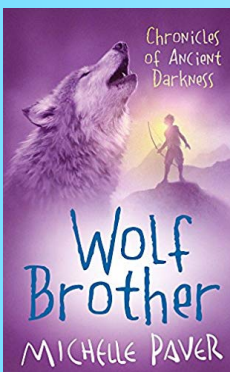

Write a prediction of what this narrative could be about.

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

From looking at the cover of this book, I think the genre could be an adventure/ mythical narrative. The atmosphere of the book is quite dark, this is shown through the dark colours used in the illustration. However, there is a glowing light in the background which I think represents a happy ending.

LO: I can make predictions based on inference.

Let's listen to the first chapter of the story.

Write a short summary of chapter one. Remember to include the setting, key characters and main events.